

THE NEURO-SOCIO-DEVELOPMENTAL DISORDERS AN INTEGRATED APPROACH

ALMA MATER STUDIORUM
UNIVERSITÀ DI BOLOGNA

Post-graduate vocational training programme

Presentation

Objective of the course | The aim of the course is to offer skills useful for assessing the factors of individual and environmental vulnerability to neuro-socio-developmental disorders, from birth to early adulthood. In this framework the course also provides elements for their diagnosis and treatment.

The ideal attendant of the course are all those professionals variously involved in the identification and management of these vulnerabilities in any hospital or territorial care setting: doctors, psychologists, nurses, educators, psychiatric rehabilitation therapists and other health and psycho-social professionals.

Expected learning outcomes

Acquisition of skills and competences in relation to

- assessment of socio-environmental and cultural risk factors for mental health during pregnancy, the postnatal period, childhood, adolescence, early adulthood;
- recognition and management of the main somatic manifestations of mental and social discomfort in children, as well as signs of maltreatment, abuse and violence;
- identification and treatment of pervasive developmental disorders, autism, externalizing disorders; assessment of linguistic cognitive abilities and learning disorders;

- presentation and treatment of the main psychic disorders of early adulthood such as autism and Asperger's, mental states at risk of psychosis, psychotic onset;
- knowledge of the influence of culture and migration history on psychopathological manifestations

Scientific coordination of the course

Ilaria Tarricone – Bologna University, DIMEC (Director)

Rita Di Sarro – Bologna Ausl (Co-Director)
